Editorial Guidelines

The Journal of America's Physician Groups highlights the innovative ways in which APG members and partners are serving their patients and working to drive the evolution and transformation of healthcare delivery throughout the nation. Along with member groups across the U.S., our readership includes physicians, healthcare executives and industry leaders, larger employers, policymakers, and government officials. Our distribution is approximately 5,000 print copy recipients and 10,000 digital readers. Issues are posted to the APG website (www.apg.org) and to the digital platform ISSUU.

Please note that the Journal of America's Physician Groups serves to highlight our members and partners, and as such, articles from or directly involving these groups have priority. We welcome and occasionally (when space allows) publish pieces from non-APG-related authors that offer useful and objective information. However, acceptance or publication of such articles is not guaranteed. You will be notified prior to publication if your article has been accepted.

Submission Guidelines

- If you're considering a potential submission, prior notice ahead of the issue deadline is appreciated.

- Recommended article length ranges from 700 to a maximum of 1,500 words.

- Include the author's name, title, and organization as it will appear in the byline, along with a one-sentence bio at the end that explains the author's relationship to APG and provides contact information. It is preferred that bylined authors be the company's president/CEO or CMO, or other qualified subject matter expert.

- Include a headshot in print-quality resolution (300 dpi or higher) JPEG format.

- We also welcome additional photos, especially ones that can be easily outlined or have a white background. For graphs or charts, Excel format is preferred and PDF is also accepted. Accompanying photos and graphics should be print-quality resolution (300 dpi minimum or vector format).

- Articles should be submitted as Word documents along with additional materials to gphillips@apg.org by close of business on the deadline date. Submissions received after the   deadline are not guaranteed publication and may be held for future issues.

- Please submit photos and graphics as separate attachments in their native format (do not embed them in the Word file). Indicate in the article text if the photo/graphic should go in a specific location.

- APG reserves the right to edit all submissions.

- Contributors will be required to sign a release form prior to publication.

For advertising information, please contact Valerie Okunami, Publisher, at journalofapg@gmail.com.