14. APG members must meet substantially all of the below criteria. Please read carefully and check the boxes below that are applicable to your organization.

- A demonstrated focus on addressing individual patients' health needs while also improving the overall health and well-being of the patient population, as measured by a commitment to improved health outcomes.
- A demonstrated focus on and awareness of the total costs of care for a population, inclusive of both direct health care outlays and indirect costs to individuals and society.
- Participation in risk-based care models and shared savings arrangements, and/or in alternative payment models such as those in Medicare (e.g., the Medicare Shared Savings Program or models created under the auspices of the Innovation Center at the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services) and Medicaid, as well as private accountable care organization arrangements with commercial payers. The care models in which APG members participate should reward quality, efficiency, and positive health outcomes rather than the volume of services provided.
- Competencies, either within an entity or by close affiliation with another organization, in the identification and management of clinical and financial risks.
- Aligned financial and other incentives so that all health care providers within or affiliated with an organization are motivated to provide high-quality, cost-effective care.
- Engagement in population health management strategies, including a focus on preventive measures, early detection of disease, and management of chronic conditions.
- A demonstrated commitment to the ongoing assessment of clinical practices and adherence to evidence-based clinical guidelines; to measurement of care outcomes, quality of care; and to continuous quality improvement.
- Coordination of care across different care settings and providers; attention to transitions of care; commitment to seamless communication between and collaboration among health care providers to ensure coordination and continuity of care.
- If the organization's focus is primarily primary care, acceptance of professional or global risk, and/or demonstration of the commitment and capability to coordinate care for its patients across care settings and/or primary and specialty integration. If the organization's focus is specialty or multispecialty care, it should also be at risk for the costs and quality of specialty care, and optimally for the continuum of outpatient and acute care.
- If the organization is solely or partly an enabler of participation in value-based care, rather than a direct care provider itself, its business model should be aligned with the cost and quality outcomes of its physician and other provider partners; it should be at risk with its provider partners in value-based arrangements; it should be focused on enabling care delivery transformation rather than only providing administrative efficiencies, technology solutions, and/or financial services; and it must prioritize physician leadership and engagement, putting physicians and care teams at the center of value-based payment models.

- Technology integration and data-driven decision making: APG Organizational Members should demonstrate the careful and appropriate use of data analytics and technologies; continuous monitoring of performance metrics and adaptation based on real-time information; adoption of health information technologies for efficient data exchange and communication; and use of electronic health record technologies to support coordinated and comprehensive care, including through patient portals. The organization should also demonstrate the careful and appropriate use of technologies enabled by artificial intelligence, with appropriate disclosures to patients.
- A demonstrated patient-centered focus, with an emphasis on eliciting patients' preferences and involvement in decision-making; open communication with patients about treatment options, risks, benefits, and costs; the tailoring of care plans to meet patients' desired outcomes and health and social needs; and promotion of health literacy and patients' own roles in preserving and advancing their health.
- A demonstrated awareness of and focus on the social determinants of health and of meeting patients' main health-related social needs, either directly or through direct engagement with community organizations and partners.
